America's Career Kit (Online Resources)

The Internet has opened up a whole new world to individuals seeking jobs or training and employers looking for qualified workers. Several web sites, developed by the Employment and Training Administration in close partnership with the States, offer some of the most comprehensive and easily accessible online employment and training resources.

America's Job Bank (<http://www.ajb.org>) is the world's largest pool of active job opportunities. America's Job Bank (AJB) provides around-the-clock access to more than 1.5 million job openings listed by major corporations and small businesses throughout the United States. It is also available on computers in public libraries, colleges and universities, high schools, shopping malls, military bases, community centers, and other public places. AJB also allows job seekers to post their resumes (<http://www.ajb.org/seeker>) for employers to search and review (<http://www.ajb.org/employer>). More than 800,000 resumes were posted by mid-2000.

America's Learning Xchange (<http://www.alx.org>) provides information on career exploration, training, education, testing, assessment, and other career tools. With 300,000 offerings from more than 6,000 providers, America's Learning Xchange offers varied training options for individuals wanting to enhance their skills and employers seeking to improve their employees' productivity. Its Tools of the Trade has information for workforce professionals on seminars, training providers, consultants, research, certification information, and other tools.

America's Career InfoNet (<http://www.acinet.org>) includes a wealth of information on job trends, wages, and national and local labor markets, as well as other valuable occupational, economic, and demographic data. Its Career Resource Library provides link to other Internet-based resources. America's Career InfoNet accesses information from the Department of Labor's America's Labor Market Information System (ALMIS) database.

O*NET Online (<http://online.onetcenter.org/>) is a database that describes a wide variety of occupations, their requisite skills, and earnings potential. This is useful for individuals exploring career options as well as businesses developing job descriptions and refining recruitment and training goals.
